HANDLING THE COTTON

The man who takes the time to scratch beneath the surface, will find a condition of affairs existing in our own country, which, to put it in its mildest form, is not conducive to the welfare of the country.

There are many cotton farmers who cannot understand the present situation. They have always been accustomed to placing their cotton on the market and receiving cash in return. This year, they have been informed that this will not be the case, and they are inclined to the belief that the classes, as they call them, have entered into a conspiracy to rob them of their year's work by taking their cotton at a price which they cannot afford to sell it at. One of these farmers recently sought shelter from a rain under our roof and in discussing the situation, he made the remark that the war was on because men were making money out of it. That unless some millionaire of the classes were making millions out of it, there would be no war. Feeling that the classes are robbing them, they are inclined to leave their crops and leave their debts and move out to some other place. They take this view of the situation that it will take all their cotton to pay what they owe, that after they have toiled through the fall months and gathered the crop, they will be just as poor off as they are now and they do not see the injustice to their fellow man that would result in leaving their crops, and leaving their debts.

THE MEN who hold these opinions are hard to reach. They read only the literature of the socialist party and when they engage in conversation with those who do read other literature, it is in the manner of an argument or a clash of words.

Persons who do not realize the harm that might come of such conversation, tell them that cotton raised by the republicans and democrats will bring ten cents, while cotton raised by socialists will bring but five cents. Having been taught that the world is against them, having been led to believe that they are in bondage to the classes who take all they earn, they drink in these street tales and their bitterness against the government grows stronger and the fires of hatred against the classes are kindled afresh.

HUMAN NATURE is about the same everywhere, there is no doubt of that, and human nature is amenable to reason when kind treatment is accorded. They read their literature exclusively but in that they do no worse than we because we read ours to the exclusion of theirs. Their environment is different to ours although we live in the same country, they are taught differently to us, although our interests are identical. They have some very bright men at the head of their party who are in earnest, who are striving to bring benefits to their people. Like all other organizations they have their pillars, they have their men who agitate for what they make out of it, and these agitators are those who do the greatest harm.

A SYSTEMATIC EFFORT should be made to teach this element of farmers, that bankers, merchants, newspapers, and the government are doing all in their power to restore the cotton market. They must understand that we use but about one-fifth of the cotton we produce, the rest must be sent away to other countries. Shipping on the high seas is dangerous and for that reason traders will not run the risk of shipping cotton abroad. There is another reason found in the fact that the mills abroad buy cotton on three months' credit and the traders are not willing to trust the spinners on that time. Not that they are dishonest, but there is a fear they will not be able to pay. If the farmer were to change places with the cotton traders, they would not run the risk of making shipments under such conditions.

There is a portion of the cotton crop that will move this year in the ordinary way. One of Ardmore's best informed bankers is of the opinion that three-fourths of the crop will move as it has always moved. That percentage of the crop may be too large and yet there is a chance for early peace in the war zone which would give an outlet for all the cotton. As a matter of fact, one man knows just as much as another, for none of them know.

THE COTTON EXCHANGE is closed and no one knows what cotton is worth. Some sold in New England the past week for 6 1/2 cents which is equal to a price of 5 1/2 cents here. That price is too cheap. With the prices the farmer pays for dry goods, shoes and groceries, he cannot raise cotton for that price. The thing to do then, is to decline to sell at that price or at any other price below ten cents, but place the cotton in warehouses. Almost every railroad town will have a warehouse. Money may be borrowed on cotton. The local banks will make loans on it and will obtain loans on the same cotton from the federal reserve banks. If the government did not allow its money to be used to co-operate with the banks, the local bankers would not have enough money to take care of the farmers, but we feel an appreciation for the help the government is giving and will avail ourselves of the offer. By that means cotton will not have to sell at a low price. The European disturbance will not last long and the time will soon come when there will be a demand for every bale of cotton our country has.

TO DRIVE THESE farmers who believe they are being wronged further from the government, is destructive to the national life. The government needs the willing support of every citizen it has, and there is a responsibility resting upon every individual citizen to use such means as he can to demonstrate to the socialist farmer that no one will be treated better than he, and that every effort is being made to provide a market for the cotton.

ECONOMY ON THE FARM

Some good men who have earnestly considered the cotton question, have seen that the farmer could not at once realize in cash the full value of his crop and have urged economy upon the part of the farmer. The farmer who is affected most cannot further economize, he has lived on about as little as he can. But economy on the farm can be applied to economy of time. There is a portion of the year wasted by many farmers. If they could manage to use that spare time at profitable employment, they could earn enough with which to feed their families for the entire year. The government is working on economy of time by encouraging canning syrup making, silo building and industries along that line, which will result in furnishing lucrative employment each day on the farm.

Another plan has been suggested and that is to valorize the crop which means that the government shall place a value upon cotton and get back at it and make it worth that much. If the government says cotton is worth ten cents a pound and will make it worth that much, the banker would know just how much he could loan on it, and the farmer would know just what sum he is entitled to borrow. But without valorization, the farmer cannot know just what maximum amount he is entitled to borrow.

BIG YEAR WITH BAPTISTS.

Association Held in Love County Was a Success.

Ardmore delegates to the Baptist Association at Marietta have returned home. They report that the attendance was very good and the meeting one of the most successful ever held. Rev. E. M. Masters of Ardmore was elected moderator. Rev. J. W. Tunnison, who has been in the missionary field for the association the past year, was re-elected. The year was closed with the organization out of debt. The largest number of additions to the church ever made in one year was reported at this meeting. Eight new churches have been organized and have joined the association.

Some prominent visitors were present, among them being Rev. W. A. McKinney of the Baptist Orphans Home in Oklahoma City and Rev. W.

R. Chandler of Shawnee, who succeeded the late Rev. J. L. Keller as missionary in the southeastern portion of the state.

Among those who returned were Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Masters, Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Whitten, R. A. Wilson, Prof. G. P. Selvidge, Mrs. P. E. Conlee and J. M. Crosbie.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I advised the 'boys' when they enlisted for the Spanish war to take Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with them, and have received many thanks for the advice given," writes J. H. Houghland, Eldon, Iowa. "No person, whether traveling or at home should be without this great remedy." For sale by all dealers.

Stockholm, Sept. 5.—The Kaiser's name has been stricken from the nominations for the Nobel peace prize.

Caddo Corn Carnival.

Col. Sidney Suggs has returned from Caddo, where he attended the annual corn carnival at that place. Mr. Suggs states that the exhibits of products of the farm and garden were especially fine this year and from the air of prosperity pervading that country the citizens are not paying much attention to foreign wars.

Col. Suggs is enthusiastic over the Caddo exhibit and states that it is an example that should be followed by every county in the state. The live stock and poultry exhibit there was exceptionally good this season and shows the result of careful breeding stimulated no doubt by the spirit of competition instilled by these annual affairs wherein neighbors compete with each other in friendly rivalry. On account of the inclement weather the carnival had to be postponed for one week but notwithstanding this handicap the second attempt proved a great success.
